The Examiner further states that Brown teaches that cat foods can be in canned or kibble form.

Appellants assert that the arguments presented above regarding Reinhart in traversing the § 103(a) rejection also apply to the present rejection. The Reinhart reference fails to teach or even suggest low levels of dietary fat (from about 7% to about 14%) in combinations with the criticality of omega-3 or omega-6 fatty acid source at this specific level.

Moreover, as Brown does nothing to remedy the deficiencies of Reinhart, the non-obviousness of Claims 10 and 11 has also been demonstrated. That Brown teaches canned and kibble cat foods is immaterial to the inventive discoveries relevant to low levels of lipid in combination with the specified omega-3-fatty acid, flax seed oil. The combination of Reinhart and Brown does not teach or suggest each and every element of Appellants' presently claimed invention.

Therefore, Appellants contend that the claimed invention is unobvious and that the rejection should be withdrawn.

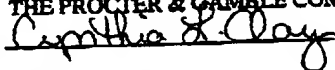

SUMMARY

In view of all of the above, it is respectfully submitted that the aforementioned rejections are erroneous. The Board's reversal of the rejections is respectfully requested.

Respectfully Submitted,

THE PROCTER & GAMBLE COMPANY
